MENDOCINO VALLEY SCENES — COUNTY BUILDINGS — MENDOCINO LOGGING AND COAST SCENES

VOL. XXX. UKIAH, MENDOCINO CO., CAL.: FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1905 NO. 9

PURDY BEATS THE "DUTCH"

Carl Purdy of the Terraces is rapidly gaining a national fame as a grower of bulbs and is attaining a success not hoped for in this line when he received the commission from the government to try the soil of Mendocino county for the growing of tulips. Recently in a competive test of many thousand of tulips submitted by a number of the great Holland growers and from other sources, some grown by Mr. Purdy excelled all the others. This is no small victory for the Mendocino county wizzard as Holland has always excelled all other countries in the production of tulips.

Mr. Junnemann who is the gardener in charge of the great experimental station at Washington, D. C., spent last Sunday and Monday with Mr. Purdy at the Terraces. While there Mr. Junnemann inspected the stock of bulbs and was greatly pleased with their growth. He reports that the highest degree of success so far attained in the United States in the cultivation of tulips has been reached by Mr. Purdy at his Mendocino county home. He was very loud in his praise of Mr. Purdys work and is very enthusiastic over the prospects for experimental work at the Terraces. Mr. Purdy is an untiring worker and his success is no surprise to his friends in this city.

Sheep Shearers are Busy.

The Philo sheep shearers hit town Monday on their way to Fords to commence their season's work. From there they will proceed to the Van Arsdale ranch, the northern limit of their territory, and then commence working back this way. They expect to be in the valleys on this side of the mountains for about five or six weeks and will have several days shearing when they reach home. The crew is composed of Dillon Whipple. P. S. Ray, G. E. Whipple, J. D. Harrison, Earl Prather, R. E. Brown, William Akers and A. J. Watson.

Vag Gets Twenty Days.

E. B. Bateman, a tramp priater, was sentenced by Judge Crockett last Monday to spend twenty days in the local bastile. He was sent from Willits a few weeks ago to spend a ten day vacation. He could not stay sober, however, and a few days after his release again tried to put the liquor traffic out of commission. The local dealers had a large stock on hand and he could not even make a hole in what was in sight.

Baseball News.

The Fort Bragg baseball team and the Ukiah boys will cross bats on the local diamond Sunday, September 10th. They will play for the county championship. Both teams have had a very successful season and have a large number of victories to their credit and the game will be well worth witnessing. Next Sunday's game will be between the Santa Rosa and the local team.

Will Change Meeting Night.

The city fathers have decided to change their meeting night and have instructed City Attorney Thatcher to prepare an ordinance designating it as the first Monday night of each month. From time immemorial they have been meeting on the third Monday.

Injured Lady Recovers.

Mrs. Oard, the lady who recently underwent two operations at the local county hospital, has sufficiently recovered to be able to be up and around. The case was a remarkable one and there was very little hopes entertained for her recovery at first.

Woodsman Killed.

Bert Gossi was killed at Caspar last week by being crushed between two logs. The deceased was a native of Italy and had been employed in the woods for some time.

VICHY SPRINGS ARE TO BE SOLD

It is very likely that in the near future Vichy springs will become the property of a large company and will be advertised and improved until it is one of the best known and most select resorts in the state. The first move along this line was made this week when F. A. Haber of San Francisco visited this city and succeeded in getting an option on the springs property from J. A. Redemeyer.

The document on file in the recorders office sets forth that on August 26 J. A. Redemeyer and F. A. Haber entered into an agreement regarding the sale of the property which is to hold for six months, or until March, 1906. Haber agrees to pay $50,000 for the property besides reimbursing the present owner for all the improvements he may make during that time up to $2,000. A forfeit of $400 was put up by Mr. Haber and it looks very much as if he meant business.

Vichy is one of the finest mineral springs in the world and there are numerous other springs on the place that have a large flow. The whole property could not have been more suitable for a summer resort if the hand of man had designed it on purpose. The parties figuring on purchasing it are no doubt contemplating building a large hotel on the property.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Redemeyer have been among the most popular hosts the place has ever had and it will be with regret that the patrons will hear of the proposed change in management. It is understood that the price Mr. Redemeyer is being offered is nearly double the amount that they were valued at when he took possession of them. This alone speaks well for his management.

Sandelin's Narrow Escape.

Mine Host Sandelin of the Palace, accompanied by his son, spent last week at Orrs springs. On the return trip they met with a remarkable accident, as all concerned in it entirely escaped injury. It happened on top of the ridge where they came up on a bark team. Frank, who claims to be something of a reinsman, concluded to pass the team without disturbing the driver, who was asleep. The long grass by the road deceived him and he turned in a very steep place and over went the buggy. He states that both the horse and buggy turned completely over and landed right side up. He was on the lower side of the rig and could do nothing but submit to being rolled. Mr. Sandelin was so pleased to see that no damage had been done that he forgot to be scared. His son however had lost all confidence in his father's driving and walked down all the hills the remainder of the way into town. He says that his father is a bum driver and that after this he intends staying home and being prepared to participate in the division of his father's life insurance.

Cupid Gets Busy.

The following marriage licenses were issued by Cupid Ganter this week and he states that he is hopeful of rounding up a few more before Saturday night: A. L. Anderson and Daisy Dunn both of Westport; J. H. Duff of Boonville and Miss Nora M. Stoddart of Ukiah; C. F. Page of Ukiah and Miss Lena A. McCabe of Willits; H. H. Elliott and Miss Annie Coombs of Littleriver; A. M. Simpson and Alfretta Norris of Hopland.

Popular Couple Wedded.

H. H. Elliott, one of the most popular commercial men on the road, and Miss Annie Coombs, one of the most popular residents of Littleriver, were married at the residence of the bride Wednesday. The happy couple have the best wishes of a host of friends.

School House Painted.

The Ukiah grammar school building has received a very necessary coat of paint that greatly improves the appearance of that structure. The work was done by Chas. Barrick.

C. N. R. R. Accident Kills Five

E. W. Lucas, engineer, dead.
Roy Scott, fireman, dead.
Weaver Higgins, dead.
H. L. Stalnaker, dead.
Cello Lenotti, dead.
A. A. Marks, arm broken and badly scalded.
M. J. Murphy, brakeman, ankle dislocated.
Jerome Hill, time keeper, bruised and leg broken.
Jack McDonald, badly bruised, hand burned, wounds on head and face.

Engine 34, in charge of Engineer Lucas, was wrecked at the Goat ranch switch back about six miles above Willits Monday afternoon. The engine was backing down this grade which is very steep and the engine skidded and those in charge lost all control of it. Striking the curve it capsized, crushing Lucas to death under its massive iron frame.

Conductor Hawkins, Spud Murray and Frank Thom, who were riding in the tender, jumped when they saw the engine was running away, Murray getting a broken leg but the others escaping with bruises. A number of others who were riding on the pilot and tender were not so fortunate Five men are dead and four seriously injured.

As soon as the news of the accident reached Willits a special was sent to the scene of the wreck with all the available physicians in town and the wounded taken to the Redwood company's hospital at the mill. Monday night Weaver Higgins, Cello Lonotti and Henry Stalnaker died and Roy Scott, the fireman, lingered until Tuesday morning.

The wounded men are all doing nicely, A. A. Marks being taken to San Francisco to the Southern Pacific hospital. Engineer Lucas was the only married man killed and leaves a wife and two sons. The remains were shipped below for interment. Weaver Higgins was buried at Willits Wednesday and was a son of Pres Higgins, formerly of this city. Roy Scott's parents reside at Willits but were picking hops in this valley at the time of the accident. The other dead men have no relatives in this country.

Engine 21 brought the disabled engine down yesterday on its way to the machine shops at Tiburon.

Coroner Taylor came up from Ukiah Tuesday and impaneled a jury and the hearing began in the evening at 7:30.

Drs. Clark, Edwards and Blodgett testified as to the cause of death of the unfortunate men.

Conductor Lew Hawkins, who was in charge of the train, testified that the crew had delivered a flat car loaded with a donkey engine, to the top of the grade and was returning with the engine when the trouble occurred. In the cab were Engineer Lucas, Firemen Roy Scott and Hawkins. On the pilot were Brakemen Murray and Thom, Jerome Hill and Jack McDonald. On the tank were A. A. Marks, Harry Stainacker, Weaver Higgins and Carlo Lonnatte.

On dropping down the hill, after getting under headway, the engineer applied the air brakes, which caused the drivers to slide, and the driver brakes were then released and the engine reversed and given steam. The engine gained speed and again the brakes were applied, but did not decrease the speed of the swiftly flying iron horse. When Hawkins saw that Lucas could not control the engine he jumped from the cab door and fell upon a pile of rock. Upon arising he heard a crash and escaping steam, and realized that a wreck had occurred. He hastened down the hill where he found that the engine had jumped the track and capsized. A. A. Marks was found under the cab of the engine and Scott was on the bank above the track.

On being asked what he believed caused the wreck, Hawkins gave several reasons which contributed to the cause of the disaster. The grade was steep and the rails covered with rust, the use of keeleys (a pipe carrying water which is sprayed on truck flanges) which would tend to make a tack slippery, and the method of handling the engine.

Hawkins did not know if the engineer had used sand on the rails to assist in stopping the engine. The grade is the steepest of the logging roads, but the engineer had come down the hill with the engine, under what was apparently the same conditions, less than half an hour before the accident.

Other witnesses were examined, but their testimony did not change materially the facts as given by Hawkins.

The following acted as members of the coroner's jury: P. L. Hall, foreman; Frank Shaw, Austin Muir, Monroe James William Williams, Lee Auten and George Richardson. They visited the scene of the wreck Tuesday and on their return brought in a verdict that the unfortunate men came to their death by accident.

The funeral of Roy Scott took place Wednesday afternoon from the M. E. church and was largely attended. The funeral of Lucas, the unfortunate engineer, took place yesterday in San Francisco. Interment at Cypress Lawn cemetery.

Articles of incorporation and consolidation of the Southern Pacific Railway company as amended were filed in the office of the county clerk Wednesday. The articles include the S. P. of California, S. P. of Arizona and the S. P. of New Mexico. The following routes are mentioned in the document: Commencing near Winters and running in a northwesterly direction up Berryessa valley through Yolo, Solano, Napa, Lake and Mendocino counties to a point near Ukiah, a distance of about 105 miles; commencing near Woodland and running in a northwesterly direction to a point near Lakeport, about 100 miles; commencing near Willows and running in a northwesterly direction to a point near Round valley, a distance of 75 miles; commencing near Elmira and running northwesterly through Madison and Ramsey to Clear lake, about 75 miles. None of these routes have as yet been built nor does there appear to be any activity in railroad circles that could indicate an immediate intention of the S. P. of doing so.

FLYING STUMP KILLS CHILD

The two-year-old daughter of C. H. Haskins was killed at Wendling Wednesday morning by a flying stump while it was playing in the residence of S. A. White with some other children. Another piece struck and badly bruised mrs. White, knocking her over one of the other children and probably saving its life. mrs. Haskins and the other occupants of the house escaped injury. The blasting was being done by Langtry & Sons who have the contract for clearing the right of way for the railroad. They had put a blast in a large stump two pieces of which struck on the roof of the house and crushed through nearly demolishing it. The piece that struck the child weighed over 100 pounds and mashed in its head. The little one lived about an hour after the accident.

An ordinance has been introduced to make some change in the fire limits. It will come up next month before the town board.

MRS. L. F. LONG DIES IN CITY

Mrs. L. F. Long died at her residence in San Francisco last Thursday the funeral services being held Friday afternoon at her late residence and the remains cremated at the Odd Fellows crematory. The ashes of the deceased will be taken to the McNab ranch at Largo where they will find a final resting place beside of those of her late husband who was also cremated.

The deceased was the daughter was the daughter of the late McNab of Largo and was born in Glascow, Scotland, in May, 1835, and came to this country by way of Panama in 1870. In March, 1871, she was married to L. F. Long at Largo by Judge J. B. Lamar. The children of the deceased are Susie, Isabella, Maud, Alex, Joe, Jim, Charlie and Junie, all of whom survive and live in San Francisco except the last named who is a resident of this city. The deceased was a sister of Attorney J. L. McNab of this city.

To Visit Birthplace.

Major W. W. Cunningham left this morning for San Francisco on his way to visit his old home in Tennessee. This will be his first visit to the state of his birth in fifty-seven years. In speaking of the remarkable changes that had taken place in that country since that time the major stated that he had recently seen and talked with a gentleman from that state and was assured that there was one thing he would recognize. On inquiry he was told that it was the Cumberland river and that he would recognize it because it was still flowing the same way—down hill.

A Fullgrown Melon.

J. H. Christie was in from his Coyote valley ranch Monday with another load of his inimitable melons. He reports that some of the vines cover a space twenty-seven feet in diameter and that the foliage is so dense that it completely screens the melons. He broke another record Saturday by bringing in a melon weighing forty-two pounds. It was on exhibition at Rickers and was purchased by Dr. Moore. These large melons are said to be very superior in flavor to the smaller ones. In fact he is receiving orders ahead for these monsters.

NeW Bank for Mendocino.

Articles of incorporation for the Mendocino Bank of Commerce were filed with the county clerk last week. The capital stock is $25,000 of which half has been paid in cash. The directors are C. J. Wood, W. B. Coombs, J. S. Ross, F. H. Perkins, Joshua Grindle and F. W. Stickney. It is reported that Joshua Grindle will probably be selected as president and F. W. Stickney as cashier.

Got a Buck

Frank Craig and mother are visiting at the Shoemake ranch near town. Mr. Craig was out on a hunt this week and potted a fine buck. He shipped it to San Francisco to prove to his city friends that he was a true sportsman. Mr. Craig is employed by the Phoenix Fire Insurance company at their San Francisco offices.

Senator Woodward Receives Bonds.

Senator Woodward of Santa Rosa was in town Wednesday completing the purchase of the Fort Bragg Union highschool bonds by the Union Trust Savings bank of Santa Rosa of which he is president. He paid the money over and received the bonds and returned on the afternoon train.

Will Stand Trial.

James Weller and Tom Jones killed a couple of fawns on Eel river last week it is alleged and they were arrested by Constable Lynch and brought to this city for trial. They plead not guilty before Judge Crockett and the trial was set for the 19th of this month.

APPRAISES FOR INDIAN LANDS

Major James McLaughlin, the commissioner recently appointed by the President to appraise the relinquished lands of the Round valley reservation, passed through town last week on his way to Covelo to commence his duties. The following item regarding the matter is taken from the Covelo Review and is a very complete explanation of the matter:

Major James McLaughlin, a special agent of the U. S. Interior department appointed by the President to appraise the relinquished land of the Round Valley Indian Reservation, comprising 66,111 acres, arrived here last week. He has been in the service for a generation and has made most of the Indian treaties of late years, besides performing other difficult missions. His wide experience will enable him to do the right thing in this present difficult undertaking, though no one could please everbody.

He is accompanied by his private secretary, W. B. Hennessy, who, by the way, was the late editor of the St. Paul Daily Globe. These two gentlemen accompanied by the Indian Agent H. J. Johnson and U. S. Commissioner Con. H. Goldberg, left yesterday morning for Summit valley where they will pitch their first camp. The two latter gentlemen were asked by Major McLaughlin to accompany him on account of their familiarity with the country and the local conditions.

The appraising will take several weeks and inside of sixty days the land will be open for filings under the U. S. homestead laws. That portion lying in Trinity county can be filed on after October 3rd.

Duff-Studdert Nuptials.

John Duff and Mrs. Cora Studdert were married at the Christian church parsonage by Rev. Oatha Wilkison last Sunday night. Mr. Duff is a prosperous farmer of Anderson valley, and the bride is a sister of Mrs. O. A. Chilson of this city and Mrs. J. W. Rose of Boonville. The happy couple left last Tuesday morning for their new home near Boonville. The PRESS joins with their many friends in wishing them a happy journey through life.

A Former Resident.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schmitz came up from San Francisco this week on a visit. Mr. Schmitz was the gentleman who was associated with S. Wurtenberg in building the first flour mill in this county at Calpella in 1863. After that mill was destroyed by fire they built a mill in this city at a place near the site of the present plant of the Ukiah Milling company.

Must Put in Meters

At the last meeting of the board of town trustees it was decided that no new lights would be installed unless the party desiring the lights would put in a meter. This ruling applies to parties putting in any additional lights or installing lights. For the meter the town requires a deposit of $12. When the meter is surrendered the deposit will be refunded.

Look Out For Thieves.

Reports have come from several different parties of late to the effect that sneak thieves have been operating in this city quite frequently for several months past. The latest victim of one of these culprits was Mrs. A. Foster, who lost a purse containing a few dollars last Tuesday morning, while she was absent from the house but a few minutes.

The Baseball Game.

Something was wrong with the ball players last Sunday at the local diamond. The game between the Willits nine and the Ukiah team resulted in a score of twenty to five in favor of the home boys. The Willitites seemed to be out of form and did not play any where their usual game citedly, rising and confronting him, "or else it would be so stated in his documents. In them it is most clearly writ that only at my death, should I die without issue, art thou successor here!"

"Calm thyself, good cousin. The thought is new to thee, and therefore thou'rt disturbed. To me," he added in a low voice, "this thought hath been food and drink since thy father—I mean," hastily correcting himself—"since first I saw thee."

He rose and came to her.

"Take time to think on the words I ha' just spoken. Pray for guidance to see the wisdom of accepting the love and protection of a true hearted, righteous and God fearing man, Margaret, an' thrust not aside carelessly the offer of marriage he now makes to thee."

She lifted her head hastily as if to speak, but Josiah stopped her with a stern, peremptory motion of his hand.

"Nay, cousin, answer not now. Such grave consideration as is now before thee takes time to think on. I'll speak with thee on the subject again when thou hath let the thought of me in the position of thy husband dwell longer in thy heart. God guide thee to a right decision. Fare thee well, Margaret Mayland."

She courtesied stiffly, and he, after inclining his head, strode through the open doorway and, mounting his horse, rode toward the village.

At the sound of the closing of the door Margaret ran to the window and threw open the lattice, exclaiming with a shiver: "'Tis damp and musty in this room, or else 'tis my cousin's proposition that hath chilled me. I'll let the sunshine in, and Giles can put some logs to burn in the chimney place. Prithee, the room must be warm and cheerful for Godfrey, who," she whispered happily, "now that the storm is broken, will come ere nightfall."

For a time she looked out of doors, humming a gay tune lightly, then, leaving the room, ran up the stairs and, bursting into the chamber where Elsbeth was sitting mending linen, stood before her with flushed face and sparkling eyes.

"What frock shall I wear for Godfrey, Elsbeth?"

"Sir Godfrey hath come?" The woman laid down her work and looked at Margaret in surprise, who answered petulantly: "Nay, dullard. How could he travel in such awful storms o'er mountain roads he knows not?"

She drew a piece of paper from her bosom, reading slowly, "'Tuesday I shall reach the inn at Hackyon, lay there one night and wilt be with thee on the morrow, Wednesday.'"

She raised the paper to her lips.

"Thus reads his missive, Elsbeth. Thou'lt remember that the storm rose wild Wednesday, now six days gone by. An' so, ah, me," she sighed dismally, "poor Godfrey hath been imprisoned all these dreary hours in that foul tavern, the Puritan, where we were forced to rest when we journeyed hither." For a moment she was silent. "But the storm hath broken and set him free!" she cried triumphantly, lifting her radiant face to the sunlight. "And now, I promise thee, he rideth fast to Cragenstone!"

Suddenly she grew more serious and, seating herself on a little stool at Elsbeth's feet, rested her elbows on the woman's lap above the mending, covered her face with her hands and appeared to be in deep thought.

"What thinkest thou, Elsbeth, of my cousin Josiah?" she asked after a time.

"He hath the appearance of an upright man and godly," the other replied

"Take time to think on the words I ha' just spoken."

thoughtfully, "but, I ween, hard and stern, even above his kind, who, with their long, sad faces, do dwell upon this mountain."

"He asked this morning to wed with me," Margaret observed quietly.

"What saidst thou?" Elsbeth exclaimed, indignation in her tone and glance. "The sour visaged churl, to want my bonny Margaret! Didst tell him of Sir Godfrey?"

"Nay," blushing softly. "There are few to whom I care to say that name. I would have told Josiah, 'Nay, nay, nay!' and thrice more nay and sent him roundly to the right about on the instant for his presumption, but he would not take mine answer, and, forsooth, commanding me harshly to let thoughts of him dwell in my heart until his haughty lordship would speak with me on the subject again, he took his departure. It was this manner. Look, Elsbeth."

Rising to her feet, Margaret strode with stiff awkwardness toward the door.

"Ugh!" with a shudder. "I was forced to open the lattice to let the sunlight in after he left, the room had grown so damp and cold from his chilling presence! So thou'lt not give thy consent for thy Margaret's marriage with him, Elsbeth?" teasingly.

Elsbeth shook her head in a knowing manner.

"Forsooth, pretty, I trow thou'lt wed thy lover that rideth here anon, that thy young heart is set on, with my consent or without it, but," she continued thoughtfully, "ever will it seem strange to me that such a hard man as thy cousin Josiah doth appear to be should have a desire for anything so soft as the love of a woman."

"Prithee, forget his gloomy face," Margaret interrupted crossly; then, coming and sitting at Elsbeth's knee again, said coaxingly: "Let's talk of—Godfrey! Oh, Elsbeth, such bonny times, such happy hours as we will have together!" she exclaimed, with clasped hands and quick drawn breath. "Sweet Godfrey, to come so soon! He told me on the eve before I left—when we were both so sad; hath forgotten, stupid Elsbeth?—that he had business in London which would shortly bring him across the channel and that he would in probability visit me ere I were well settled on mine estate. Oh, Elsbeth, I could wring my hands with sorrow that the cruel storm rose and kept him from me six long days, and then again I could sing until I burst my heart for very joy that I shall see him today ere nightfall."

Rising suddenly, she went to the open window and, throwing out her arms, cried earnestly: "Oh, warm winds, whispering winds, bring me word that Godfrey now rideth safely up the mountain road—my Godfrey, whom I love!"

For answer the rough breeze tossed her hair about and blew the white points of her kerchief over her face.

"Ah," she murmured softly, "I need not thy fickle confirmation, shifting winds! My heart, that is ever my best guidance, doth give me assurance that he'll come tonight! What frock shall I wear, dull Elsbeth, with no thought above thy mending? Shall I do him honor and receive him as a stately Parisian lady in my silken gown of peachblow hue with feathers waving high above my head, or shall I let him take me to his heart as a simple mountain maiden with smooth hair, gray homespun frock and sober countenance? Whichever way, good Elsbeth, will Godfrey like me best?"

Elsbeth, enjoying the girl's happy mood, smiled indulgently.

"An my opinion were worth the giving in such a case," she replied, "methinks Sir Godfrey will see only the happy light in thy blue eyes and thy red lips when first he cometh."

"Elsbeth!" Margaret shook her finger at her companion, laughing lightly. "Thou hath surely had a lover, although thou hast ever denied it, or else how knowest thou so well their ways? Come, I'll wear my peachblow silk, bedeck myself in the grandest fashion and receive my Godfrey in the withdrawing room with all the honors I would bestow upon the king were he to visit me. The king!" she exclaimed, with a disdainful toss of her head. "Forsooth, what is a king compared to Godfrey?"

The sight of the complete adoration of her charge for this man caused a feeling of pain to strike the elder woman's heart, and as she unfastened the lacing of Margaret's bodice she felt compelled to say:

"Methinks 'twere not well, sweet, to fasten thy heart so entirely on a man not yet thy husband. An old woman with much experience of the world doth know that many men, especially worldly men of fashion as Sir Godfrey La Fabienne, woo a maid with mad hot love, then ride away, leaving her to cure a broken heart."

"Elsbeth!" exclaimed Margaret sharply. "Cease thine idle chatter and dare not cast thy vile insinuations against Sir Godfrey in my presence."

Her face flushed, tears filled her eyes, and she took the lacings out of Elsbeth's hands as though she no longer wished her aid, walking from her.

"Forgive me, sweet Margaret." Elsbeth followed her anxiously, regret at her words showing in her countenance. "'Tis but my love for thee that gives me false anxiety, bonny, for thy happiness is my happiness, an' thy sorrow more than my sorrow."

For a time Margaret was silent; then she said with great seriousness: "Elsbeth, never again express doubt of Sir Godfrey. Doubt that the sun riseth to light the earth; doubt that night falls upon the day; doubt thy love for me, but never cherish such thoughts as thou didst give voice to a moment since against Sir Godfrey La Fabienne—a man," she continued in a low, passionate voice, "so much to me, so deeply rooted in my affections, that I could die for very joy of loving him. Were the earth to divide us, Elsbeth, we are one—one heart and one soul forever!"

Then, after a deep felt silence, she added in brighter tones, "But, prithee, come, the peachblow gown an' happy faces, for this is a joyful day, good Elsbeth!"

CHAPTER VII.

At the open door of the kitchen Mistress Taunston sat before her spinning wheel, busy with distaff and spindle, and at intervals as she paused in her work looked longingly toward the fertile lands of the Mayland farm. But her thoughts, never far from her son Josiah, soon strayed back to him.

"E'en now he is at his wooing," she said to herself with stern exultation, "an' I pray the good Lord who is ever watchful of the faithful to put persuasive and convincing words on my lad's lips and guide him to the most proper conduct."

For a time she seemed lost in thought until her distaff, falling from under her arm, came to the floor with a rattling noise that roused her. Then the remembrance of Hetty, who upon her arrival from her cousin's had been sent to the brook to fill the ewers, coming to her mind, she rose suddenly to look at the sun. Finding the hour to be later than she had at first supposed, her irritation and anger caused by her daughter's delay at the brook knew no bounds. She called the girl's name shrilly once, twice, muttering angrily as she got no response.

Just then Josiah rode in from his visit to the Mayland farm.

"Cease thy shrewish screaming, mother," he commanded roughly. "Dost wish to rouse the village? Thy voice can be heard half a mile below."

The dame, angered at his rebuke, resumed her seat in sullen silence, and Josiah took his horse to the barn. In a short time he returned and, entering the kitchen, threw himself down heavily on a chair near his mother, who continued to spin busily without apparently heeding his presence.

At last he broke the silence by saying with affected carelessness: "Thou didst not tell me—if my memory serves me well on so slight a matter—of what appearance the cavalier was that rode by Haggott's and mistook the Sterndorf road. Was he an unbearded gallant, fickle and changeable as the wind, one day mad in love with a pretty face and forgetting it the next, or was he old and gray haired, with an eye to finishing his days in comfort on the estate of his bride?"

His mother looked out through the doorway, reflectively maintaining for a moment or two a provoking silence. After what seemed to the impatient Josiah an interminable length of time she remarked with ill concealed eagerness, "Thou wert successful in thy wooing, Josiah, and ask now of thine enemy's appearance in order that thou mayst know the extent of thy triumph?"

GAMBLERS LAYING LOW.

Chance Games Around the University Town to be Raided.

Berkeley, Aug. 30.—Chief of Police August Vollmer has declared war on all gambling resorts in Berkeley. At his solicitation the board of trustees have passed an ordinance which makes it possible to secure a conviction once the gamblers are arrested. The ordinance provides that where gambling paraphernalia is exposed behind closed or barricaded doors, the person owning that paraphernalia shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Under the terms of this ordinance the presence of the gambling devices shall constitute prima facie evidence against every person in the room raided. For some time past gambling games have been going on the heart of town. It is rumored that on Center street within pistol shot of the university gate these games flourish in secret back rooms during the silent hours of the night. Students of the university are reported to be patrons of the quiet games. These places, as well as the Chinese fan-tan joints, will not be suffered to operate in violation of the law. The chief of police is gathering evidence against them, and the first raid is expected to make startling revelations

FOREST FIRES DESTROY FARMS

FLAMES IN SANTA CRUZ MOUNTAINS THREATEN THE TOWN OF BEN LOMOND.

All Available Help is Being Rushed to the Scene of the Fire.

Santa Cruz, Aug. 30.—Forest fires around Boulder Creek, which it was believed were under control last night, have broken out afresh and several fine ranches on Love creek, near Ben Lomond, have been swept by the fire.

Deitz's studio has been burned, and although a huge force of men is fighting the fire several homes in that vicinity are in imminent danger.

Trunks are packed and the people are ready to leave at a moment's notice.

The fire, which started in the second growth of timber near Ben Lomond, has worked its way from that town to the headwaters of Love creek, the flames at some points leaping 200 feet in the air.

Back-firing around Brookdale under the direction of Judge Logan, a large property owner in that district, has been in progress for two days and the town of Brookdale, with the county fish hatchery, is considereed safe. It is feared, however, that Ben Lomond may become a prey to the flames at any moment. A ditch is being dug between the town and the brush, where the fire is burning fiercely.

AWOKE JUST IN TIME.

Fire Nearly Costs the Lives of a Whole Family.

Grass Valley, Aug. 30.—Fire, believed to be of incendiary origin, almost cost the lives of Thomas H. Jones and his family of three children at Forest Springs yesterday morning.

The children, awakened by falling plaster and the intense heat, found the entire house in flames. They aroused their father and rushed through the flames in their nightclothes.

Jones struggled through the stifling smoke to the bedroom of his daughter, wrapped the terrified girl in her bedding, and fought his way through the flames to the nearest window, which he smashed and crawled through. Soon afterwards the roof fell in.

Jones is convinced that somebody set fire to his home in revenge for some fancied wrong.

A Forty-Niner Dies.

Salinas, Aug. 30.—Captain George Dutton, 80 years of age, a pioneer of '49 and a resident of Santa Cruz and Monterey counties for over fifty years, died yesterday morning at King City. He was a member of a California regiment during the Civil war. Since the close of the rebellion he has been a resident of Jolon, of which section he was a first settler. He leaves a son and a daughter.

Drowned in the Ocean.

San Diego, Aug. 30.—Ralph Wythebourne, a teacher in the Raja Yoga school at Point Loma, was drowned yesterday afternoon in the ocean near the Theosophical Homestead. He and other teachers had taken some of the children to bathe. When one of the youngsters got beyond his depth Wythebourne went to his assistance and brought him within reach of another teacher, who threw the child to a place of safety. Wythebourne, however was carried out by the waves and drowned. His body was recovered.

New Road in San Diego

San Diego, August 30.—The Bay Shore and Pacific railroad company was incorporated here yesterday. Its object is to construct a railway along the shore of San Diego bay to old Town Pacific Beach and La Jolla, with a branch to Point Loma, a total of thirty miles. The incorporators are: H. C. Richards, C. R. Hammond, W. M. Crouse, Stephen Connell, I. D. Stewart and H. C. Oatman of this city, and M. H. Rogers of Denver.

Parents Are Warned.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 30.—Because their five-year-old child uses vicious language a family in Hazleton yesterday received the following warning signed by some of the neighbors:

"Take notice that unless you forthwith restrain your child, aged 5 years, from using such unseemly language towards us, the undersigned, as well as toward members of our respective families, we will take such steps against you as parent of the child as are presented by law, and prosecute you to the fullest extent."

The child is a paralytic, and its parents say the other children tease it.

NAROWLY ESCAPE THE JAPANESE

A HEAVY FOG PLAYS INTO A CAPTAIN'S HANDS AND SAVES HIM.

Steamer From San Francisco Nearly Falls Into the Hands of the Mikado.

Seattle, Aug. 30.—The steamship Centennial reached port last night after a voyage to the mouth of the Amur river, for which place she sailed from San Francisco June 12. The officers say the fog and their captain's nerve saved them from capture by Japanese.

Under command of Captain Strand the Centennial sailed from San Francisco witha cargo, the principal part of which was salt, although she carried some flour. It is understood by the ship's officers that she was under charter to a man named Lourl, who claimed that he was taking the cargo to a cannery, which he owned at Nikolaevek, which is some distance from the mouth of the Aumur.

The Centennial dropped anchor fifty miles off Nikolaebsk. Here she was obliged to wait for nineteen days before she could discharge her cargo and get away.

Although the cargo of the Centennial was said to have been shipped by a private party, the fact that the work of discharging was done by Russian soldiers caused the officers and crew to have suspicions as to whether or not it was for private use.

ANOTHER DESERT MYSTERY.

Nevada Prospector Is Supposed to Have Perished of Thirst.

Bullfrog, Nev., Aug. 30.—Judge L. Bethune, a brother of Harry Bethune of Butte, Montana ,is supposed to be dead in Death Valley.

Mr. Bethune is a man well advanced in years and while here a month ago declared his intention of going to Randsburg by way of Death Valley. James C. Weller, father of Earl C. Weller of Telluride, Colo., who was searching for the body of his son, claims to have found a mule straying around a water hole about half a mile north of Surveyor's Wells. A pack outfit, which gave evidence of having fallen off the animal, was lying a short distance away, and a Bible and some leters marked with Bethune's name were found among the effects. No trace of Bethune's presence was discernible, and it is feared that the aged man is dead. The animal is supposed to have headed for water after its owner lost control of it.

DRAMATIC SUICIDE.

Woman Deliberately Walks Off Drawbridge in Sight of Hundreds.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—In sight of hundreds of passengers crowded about the rail of the steamer Eastland, a woman walked from the partly swung drawbridge into the river at Welles street last night as the bridge moved back into place after the passing of the excursion boat. The efforts of a dozen willing life-savers, who leaped from boat and docks to the river, were futile, as the victim failed to rise to the surface after the fall.

The playing of the excursion boat searchlight about the spot and the shrieks of the calliope whistle caused much excitement on the boat and among passengers in the Northwestern railway depot. Scores of suburbanites missed trains while they lingered about the docks and aided in the search.

Descriptions of the women, given by the scores of witnesses who saw her walk from the bridge, differ materially, but the police believe she was about 40 years old and of matronly figure.

China Buys Hankow Railway.

New York, Aug. 30.—As a result of the conference between the president and J. P. Morgan yesterday the Chinese Development company held a meeting and ratified the sale of the Hankow railroad back to China. It may be said that the plan was arranged at the meeting between the president and Mr. Morgan, and is satisfactory to both of them.

Alice Roosevelt to Visit China.

Peking, Aug. 30.—Miss Alice Roosevelt and thirty Philippine excursionists with a party from Manila, including General Corbin and wife and Admiral Train, will arrive here about September 12, bringing a new legation guard. Officialdom is greatly interested in Miss Roosevelt's visit. The dowager empress is preparing a palace for Miss Roosevelt's reception, and will invite her to stop there as her guest.

FRUIT PEST UNDER CONTROL.

Government Experts Have Taken a Hand in the Situation.

San Francisco, Aug. 30.—The fruit growers of the Sacramento valley will rejoice at the encouraging news that the pear blight, which so seriously threatened the extinction of the trees, is under control and that not only this parasite but those that have been menacing other fruit trees and shrubs will soon be exterminated. Three government experts of international repute, M. B. Waite, vegetable pathologist, J. S. Kearney, soil expert, and Williams, expert on plant culture, have been making a tour of the fruit country in the northern part of the state, and report taht the blight in that locality will soon be under control.

Mr. Williams, an expert employed in the department of agriculture, has but recently returned from Africa, where he has been engagd in making a study of plant life on the Sahara, with a view of adapting the same to the desert regions in Lower California. He has been making a specialty of studying those plants that possess a resistance to an alkali soil and has succeeded in discovering a species of barley and one of alfalfa that he believes may be adapted to the very worst alkali soil with great success. As soon as the researches in northern California are completed, Mr. Williams will go to southern California to put his latest theories and discoveries into practical operation. He is convinced that the plants of the Sahara may be adapted to the desert regions of California, and if he succeeds, as he anticipates, it will mark the beginning of a great change in the transformation of the desert regions.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

Home of Swamp-Root.

Pioneer Passes Away.

Alameda, Aug. 30—Timothy Driscoll, a pioneer of Shasta county and well known as a miner in the early days, died Saturday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Mary Shed, 2432 Buena Vist avenue. Deceased was aged 79 years, a native of Waterford, Ireland. He had been an invalid for a number of years, and death was due to paralysis. He came to California fifty-four years ago and settled in Shasta county. For seven years he has made his home in this city.
